

Once in 1820 there lived a boy named Tex. One day Tex found a rope. He also found a tree. Tex told his dad, Mr. Carvin to saw a piece of wood from the tree. So, Mr. Carvin sawed a piece of wood from the tree, gave it to Tex, and walked away. Tex put the wood up steady on the ground, took the rope, spun it over his head, and threw his arm forward. The rope went around the wood and the other end came to him. Tex grabbed the other end and pulled the two ends. The wood came right back to him! Tex caught the wood. Then his mother called, "Tex! Its time for your first horse back riding lesson!" Tex dashed to the front yard. There, he saw a man with a pony. The man said, "My name is Gary and you can name the pony." "I'll name her Mary." Said Tex. "Climb on her." Gary said. Tex climbed on Mary. Gary said, "Now hold the rain and lean to move. Move your tongue up then down and make a sound to speed up." Tex rode around really well and really fast. Years went by. In 1860 Tex found a cowboy suit that his dad wore. "Perfect!" He said. "Now all I need is a horse and a rope." Right at that second Mary came with a rope. "Mary!" Tex said. Mary was now a horse. Tex grabbed the rope and jumped onto Mary. Tex took some supplies to make a house and because he was really good at horse back riding he rode all the way to the Wild West to live there. When Tex got there he made a wonderful cowboy house. He was a great cowboy and caught lots of cows. Unlike all other cowboys, Tex used his house like a barn by keeping the cows there and taking care of them. One day Tex saw another cowboy hunting real hard. "What are you doing?" Tex asked. "I'm Looking for the golden cow." The cowboy said. Tex didn't know what the golden cow was so he said, "What's that?" The cowboy told Tex that the golden cow is the hardest cow to catch and if you catch it you are the best cowboy ever. Tex asked, "Do you need help? I can be your partner." "O.K." the cowboy answered. "My name is Wally Sattle. And what's yours?" "My name is Tex Carvin," Said Tex. "Now lets look for the Golden Cow!" They rode and rode in till a 20 feet brick wall was in there sight. Tex tried to jump over but he couldn't. Fortunately, Wally's horse was well trained so Tex jumped on and they rode over. Now that Mary didn't have ant weight on her she jumped over. Tex jumped on her and the two cowboys rode off! Then, right in front of them was a 2569 feet high mechanic arm with a hand with two seats in it. In front of the arm was a sign that said, Get thrown by the hand safely to pass. So Tex and Wally let their horses jump over a fence that was blocking them from walking pass and climbed in the hand. Tex pressed a button that said GO and the arm threw them. Tex and Wally landed safely. They rode on. It was starting to get dark. A minute later the two cowboys saw a light. A golden light. They rode closer. The cowboys saw a cow. A special cow. It was golden. “The Golden Cow!” Screamed Wally. He tried to catch it but he couldn’t. Tex tried. He couldn’t. Then Tex had a plan. He told Wally and they both grabbed an end of the rope. They swung it up and then swung it down. It went around the cow! They took great care of it. Wally and Tex were happy for the rest of their lives.
